ABSTRACT

"Look Back in Anger" by John Osborn Shocked the audience by its content. The play deals with many themes but basically it deals with perverse marriage. The playwright explores how marriage becomes a burden on those who cannot understand its sanctity and look at it as a sacred bond."A Happy Marriage is heaven on earth, a paradise that even the gods yearn to enter" Says a poet. But what goes wrong in marriage? Why does it fail? These are some of the questions that Osborn indirectly deals in the play. Marriage as a bond needs to be understood culturally as its meaning is different in different contents.
